DEADLINE EXTENDED FOR LANDSCAPING FOR AESTHETICS AND WILDLIFE

The recent freezing temperatures and the cold damage to the landscape have gardeners working to repair their yards and gardens, not thinking about new designs and plantings. To allow people enough time to prepare their minds for spring planting, Trout Lake Nature Center and the Institute are extending the deadline to February 15 for Naturalist Lavon Silvernell's Landscaping for Aesthetics and Wildlife class. The class will meet at the Nature Center from 9 – 11:30 AM on March 10 & 24, and April 7. This class is free to the members of the Institute and the Nature Center, but reservations must be made.

CONTINUING RESERVATIONS FOR BEST EXIT STRATEGIES FOR THE END OF LIFE SYMPOSIUM

Reservations for the Best Exit Strategies Symposium presented in partnership with Cornerstone Hospice on April 23 & 24 will continue until April 2.

The symposium consists of six workshops presented over two days to allow participants to attend all the workshops by the end of the second day. Workshops will cover: legal documents, downsizing, life-threatening diseases, critical care, funerals, veteran's services, and Medicare.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON COMMUNITY CONCERT SERIES CANCELLED

Vocal performers from Stetson University's School of Music showed presence and adaptability when they arrived for the November 22 concert and learned the stage ceiling at the Woman's Club of Eustis building was falling. The singers performed on the stage apron, but after the performance, the City of Eustis closed the building for repairs. It will remain closed for some time.

The Institute has decided to cancel the January, February and April concerts originally scheduled for the Woman's Club. In addition to being the perfect physical venue for concerts, the Woman's Club has a grand piano. No other venue is comparable.

Please Note: The telephone number in the Institute Schedule published as a newspaper insert on January 10th for the Dharma Film Festival information and reservations is incorrect. Those interested in attending the festival should call: 352.357.3995. There is no reservation deadline.
